CINI Australia's funding is currently focused on emergency response to the COVID lockdown in India. The priority is to get food to families and to keep children safe. Essential foods and soap packages are being distributed in slums, brick kilns and tea gardens.

A food packing costing $20 and consisting of rice, dahl, soya and wheat, can feed families for up to a month. The lockdown in India is very intense. In some areas people are literally not allowed out of their houses so CINI's food packages are a life saver.

The above photo is the start of a long line of people waiting to receive their food package.
